Situation

Costa Rica

- On 5 January the Venezuelan Embassy of the Interim Government of Juan Guaidó officially closed in Costa Rica, leading to significant repercussions for the issuance of documents to Venezuelans to leave Costa Rica (such as consular records or laissez-passer) as well as for the verification of documents for migratory regularization (such as criminal records and birth certificates). Following its closure, the Government of Costa Rica announced its intention to resume consular relations with the Government of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela. At the time of writing there was yet no timeline for the resumption of consular activities in Costa Rica.
- The Government of President Rodrigo Chaves requested financial assistance from the international community to help refugees and migrants on the move through Costa Rica, estimating that the arrival of refugees and migrants in transit will cost the country up to 300 million dollars.

Panama

- According to official statistics from the National Migration Service (SNM), entries of Venezuelans increased during the first two months of 2023, representing the third nationality in irregular transit through the Darien, after Haitians and Ecuadorians. 2,337 Venezuelans irregularly entered the country through the Darien in January, increasing to 7,097 in February.
- On 17 January, 177 Venezuelans in an irregular situation, who were at the Temporary Migration Reception Centre (ERM) in los Planes de Gualaca (Chiriqui Province), returned to Venezuela on the first humanitarian returns flight supported by the Panamanian government. Half of the passengers were children and women.
- On 15 February, a bus transporting 66 refugees and migrants to the ERM in Los Planes de Gualaca in Chiriqui Province crashed killing 42 people. A temporary shelter was set up in Hogar Medalla Milagrosa for family members of passengers while they waited for the identification of survivors and victims, as well as for the recovery of survivors after hospitalization. On 25 February, another bus transporting 57 refugees and migrants en route to the ERM in Los Planes de Gualaca caught on fire. There were no reports of injuries or deaths.
- Due to the bus accidents in January and February, SNM decided on 25 February to temporarily suspend the transportation services from the ERMs in Darien (San Vicente and Lajas Blancas), to the one in Los Planes de Gualaca in the Chiriqui Province while investigations led by the Authority of Transit and Terrestrial Transportation (ATTT) were ongoing. As a result of this suspension which ended on 1 March, the ERMs in Darien were overcrowded by the end of February.

Mexico

- On 5 January, the Government of the United States (U.S.) announced new migratory policy measures, including the expansion of Title 42 expulsions to three new nationalities (Cubans, Haitians and Nicaraguans) in addition to continuing such measures for Venezuelans. Based on an agreement with Mexico, up to 30,000 individuals from these nationalities can be expelled from the U.S. to Mexico per month. The measures also included new processing procedures at ports of entry (POE) using the CBP One app and the expansion of the Humanitarian Parole Program to Nicaraguans, Haitians, and Cubans (in addition to Venezuelans) allowing for the admission to the U.S. of up to 30,000 parolees per month.
- On 21 February, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and the Department of Justice (DOJ) issued a proposed rule establishing a five-year ban to reentry to the U.S. for those who irregularly enter the country after transiting through other countries that are signatories to the 1951 Refugee Convention. These refugees and migrants also become ineligible for asylum in the United States according to the proposed rule.
- During the reporting period, 2,116 Venezuelans filed asylum claims in Mexico (1,367 in January and 749 in February). Also, the National Migration Institute (INM) issued migratory cards (temporary visas for humanitarian reasons or permanent residence) to 50 Venezuelans.
- On 2 January, some five thousand refugees and migrants protested at the offices of the Mexican Commission for Refugee Aid (COMAR) in Tapachula, demanding the processing of their asylum claims. COMAR in Tapachula processed and delivered registration appointments to approximately 2,600 persons during the first three days of 2023 following the closure of its offices at the end of December due to the holidays. Meanwhile, Mexican citizens protested the agglomeration of refugees and migrants near the COMAR offices, which has affected local communities in Tapachula. In February, INM provided services within Tapachula’s soccer stadium, to increase its capacity to assist refugees and migrants, issuing temporary stay permits for a period of 30 days.
- In January, INM reported the rescue of 10 refugees and migrants (5 Venezuelans) who were trying to cross the Rio Bravo, at the border of Choahuila with the U.S., in an operation carried out in coordination with the Ministry of National Defense (SEDENA), the National Guard, the state government and the municipality, to provide humanitarian support to the population in-transit in the border region of Ciudad Juarez.
- In the first months of 2023, significant groups of refugees and migrants have been reported moving from the South of Mexico to the Northern border, including a group of 100 refugees and migrants in January and another group of 1,000 people in February leaving Tapachula, Chiapas. The first group of refugees and migrants were reportedly intercepted by INM and the National Guard. Many were referred to Migration Centres where stay permits were issued for their permanence in Tapachula or to exit the country through the Southern border. INM agents also intercepted a group of 97 people in San Pedro Tapanatepec, Oaxaca.
